

The Scavenger

The magazine of the fourth-year feature writing class

No. 4 Dec. 2017

Edmonton outside looking in

The Scavenger

The magazine of the fourth-year feature writing class

No. 3

Dec. 2016

Escapes, endings, alternatives

Yelping from the web ... living inside/out ... looking back on a TV masterpiece ... becoming sovereign ... leaving for the big time ... running from the flames ... dealing with a bruised brain ... building a bike from pieces ... telling creeps from catchers ... surviving on music ... learning to live after hockey

The Scavenger

The magazine of the fourth-year feature writing class

No. 2

Dec. 2015

Hearts of the city

- ◆ House of noise
- ◆ Schools of security
- ◆ Land of dreams
- ◆ Shop of horror
- ◆ Cops of yesteryear
- ◆ ◆ ◆
- ◆ Streets of change
- ◆ Threads of the past
- ◆ Story of survival

The Scavenger

The magazine of the fourth-year feature writing class

No. 1

Dec. 2014

A new way to face the end

Cold welcome for a beautiful game

Ugly food, lovely taste

Mean streets for trans people

No happy ending for Lucy

What the flames left behind

The cruel cost of perfection

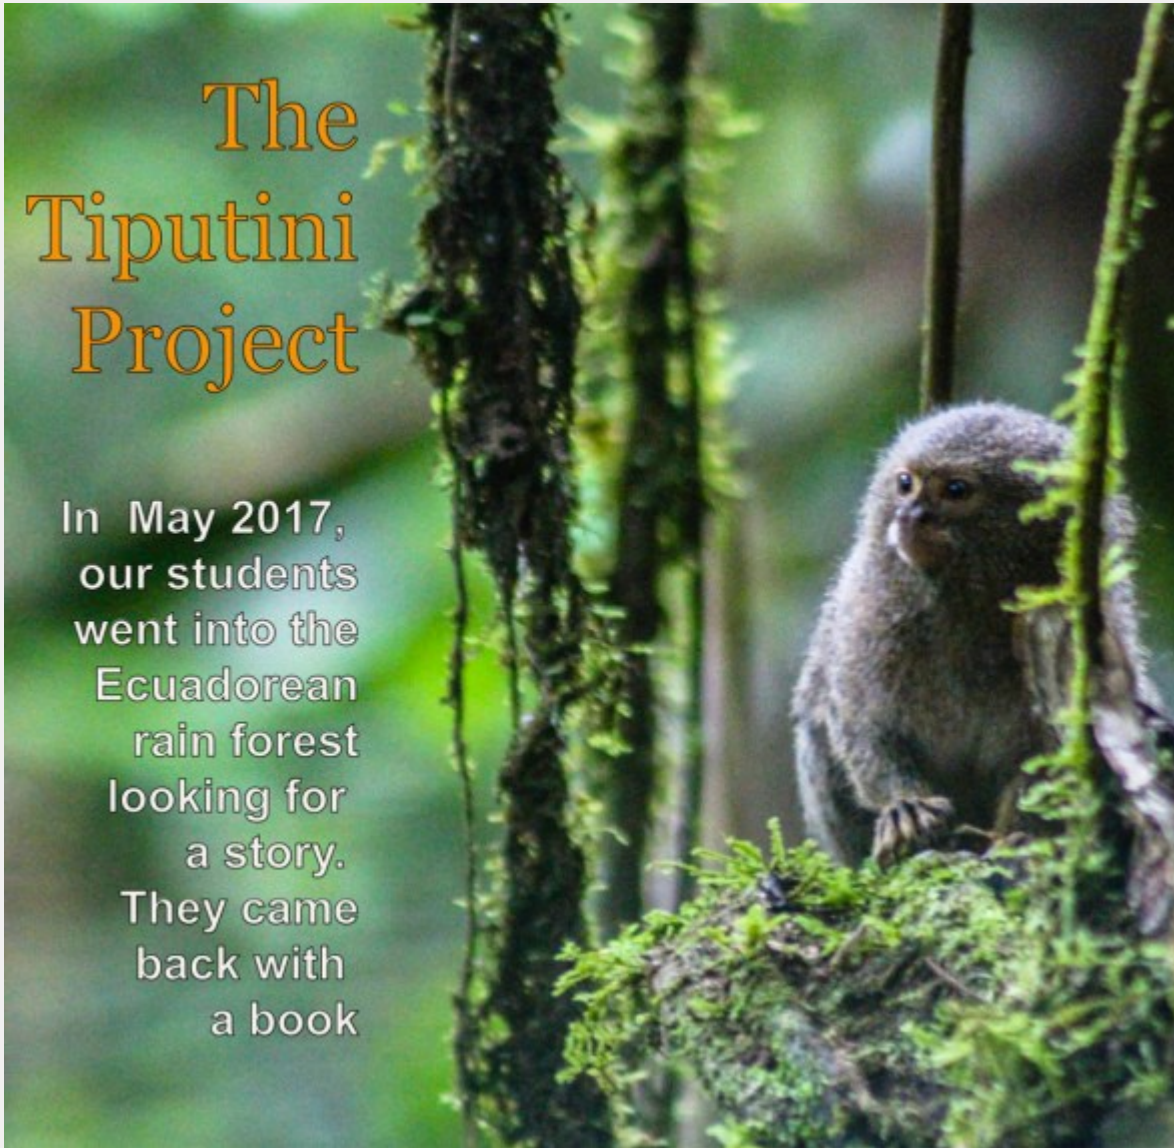

A warm place in the YEG

Who wants to be special?

Hovering parents, cowering kids

The Tiputini Project

In May 2017,
our students
went into the Ecuadorean
rain forest
looking for a story.
They came back with a book

Capital Report 2016

More politics from a Prairie perspective

Our annual public affairs magazine returns, with a brand new slate of stories from MacEwan Journalism's fourth-year political reporting class

JOURNALIST INTERRUPTED

Jorge Barrera
@JorgeBarrera
APTN Ottawa Bureau

Kelly Toughill
@ktoughill
University of King's College

Karen Unland
@KarenUnland
Taproot Edmonton

Linda Solomon-Wood
@Linda_Solomon
National Observer

@JRNLInterrupted
#JournalistInterrupted

Back to City's Centre

Share this:

Twitter

Facebook

Google

Like this:

Like Loading...